

Introduction

For this project, I created a social media content plan for a beauty and skincare brand called Glow Beauty Store. Moving away from traditional marketing, this strategy focuses on "Strategic Engagement" and providing "Decision Relief" to our customers. The purpose of this content plan is to create engaging content that attracts potential customers through a structured funnel, moving them from Problem Awareness to Solution Authority.

Target Audience (The Split Brain Ecosystem)

The target audience for Glow Beauty Store includes women aged 18–35 years old interested in skincare, makeup, and self-care. We look at them through two layers:

Instagram & TikTok (The Engagement Layer): For younger users who love visual content, reels, and relatable peer validation.

Facebook (The Trust Engine): For users who rely heavily on deep reviews, safety guidelines, and recommendations before purchasing.

Marketing Objectives

The main objectives of this content plan are:

- Increase brand awareness and validate customer problems first.

- Improve engagement on social media platforms.

- Build institutional trust through educational and informative content.

- Increase website traffic and reduce buyer anxiety using clear social proof.

- Encourage sales and customer loyalty through low-friction actions.

Content Categories

To keep the content diverse and engaging, the following categories will be used:

Educational Content (Problem-First Thought Leadership)

Posts that provide useful information, focusing on why certain skin problems exist rather than just selling products.

Examples: Skincare routines, makeup tips, and product usage guides.

Promotional Content (High-Value CTA)

Posts that highlight products and special offers using low-friction action verbs instead of standard "Submit" buttons.

Examples: Product launches, discount announcements, and seasonal promotions.

Customer Engagement Posts (The Vibe Layer)

Designed to encourage interaction and build a strong human connection with the audience.

Examples: Polls, "This or That" choices, and Ask Me Anything sessions.

Social Proof Content (User-Generated Content & The Proof)

Content that builds credibility and trust using real, raw, and imperfect photos from customers, which always outperform professional studio shots.

Examples: Customer reviews, testimonials, and before-and-after photos.

Behind-the-Scenes Content

Posts that show the human side of the business, like the order packaging process, team introductions, and daily operations.

Monthly Social Media Content Plan (The 30-Day Matrix)

Week 1: Brand & Problem Awareness

The focus will be on introducing the brand and validating industry problems. Content will highlight the gap between common skin issues and correct routines.

Week 2: Proving Authority

This week focuses on building solid trust. Content will include official safety approvals, ingredients verification, and certified product quality to reduce purchasing risk.

Week 3: Customer Engagement & UGC

The content will focus on peer validation through customer reviews, authentic testimonials, and real before-and-after results.

Week 4: Conversion & Urgency

The final week focuses on creating urgency with "Last Call" campaigns, motivating customers to make decisions using easy, low-friction entry points.

The Social Media Logbook (Posting Schedule)

The brand will publish 3 posts per week to maintain operational consistency across days:

Week 1: Brand & Problem Awareness

Day 02 (Instagram): Information about common skincare mistakes (Problem Trigger).

Day 04 (Facebook): Educational post about choosing the right cleanser.

Day 06 (TikTok): Quick video introducing Glow Beauty Store's vision.

Week 2: Proving Authority

Day 09 (Facebook): Post about official safety certifications and ingredients (Authority Trigger).

Day 11 (Instagram): Dermatologist tips for winter skin protection.

Day 13 (TikTok): Video showing the high-quality standards of our products.

Week 3: Customer Engagement & UGC

Day 16 (Instagram): "This or That" interactive story or post for followers.

Day 19 (TikTok): Raw video of an intern showcasing a product texture (Vibe Trigger).

Week 4: Conversion & Urgency

Day 24 (Instagram): Customer testimonial video highlighting results.

Day 26 (Facebook): Q&A session answering remaining customer doubts.

Day 28 (Multi-Channel): Seasonal discount with the low-friction CTA "Start My Glow Journey" (Conversion Trigger).

Expected Results (Measuring What Matters)

Instead of looking at vanity metrics like likes, Glow Beauty Store will measure success through outcome metrics:

High-quality inquiries and conversion velocity in Instagram/TikTok DMs.

Profile views from target customers and link clicks on conversion buttons.

Conclusion

In conclusion, creating a structured social media content plan helps Glow Beauty Store stay organized and maintain consistent communication. By combining a psychological funnel with a functional logbook, the brand can strengthen its online presence, build trust, and achieve its marketing objectives successfully
